Ryder Cup 2010

- Twenty Ten Course
- Newport South Wales

There is no more exhilarating golf event in the world than The Ryder Cup. After winning back the cup last year at Valhalla in thrilling fashion, America's team seeks to retain the cup for the first time since 1993. In 2010, The Ryder Cup moves to beautiful South Wales where Captain Colin Montgomery and his team of Europe's top 12 players will duel Team USA, led by 2010 Ryder Cup Captain Corey Pavin.

In Wales, the tournament venue will be the spectacular new Twenty Ten Course, the first golf course ever designed specifically for Ryder Cup play. Featuring 9 holes from an existing Robert Trent Jones, Jr. design that have been extensively remodeled and 9 new holes from European Golf Design, Twenty Ten promises to offer an unprecedented Ryder Cup spectator experience and a stern test of golf for the world's best players.
